

Fastmarkets MB and Fastmarkets AMM base metals holiday pricing schedule 2021

Fastmarkets MB and Fastmarkets AMM's base metals price assessments are published in accordance with the London Metal Exchange holiday calendar, which reflects bank holidays in England and Wales.

This means that base metals prices assessed by Fastmarkets across the world are published on every LME business day, including between Christmas and New Year, but are not published or rolled over during LME holidays (eight days in total). Base metals prices that are due to be published on LME holidays or weekends will instead, in most cases, be published on the closest working day that precedes or follows that date, and on a day that falls in the same calendar month.

Base metals prices assessed by reporters in Shanghai, Singapore, Brazil and the United States will also follow the LME holiday calendar. They will not be published on English holidays but will be published even when there is a public holiday in these countries.

The only exception is Fastmarkets MB and AMM's China and US copper scrap prices, which mostly trade basis the Comex copper price, and therefore will follow the Chicago Mercantile Exchange (CME) holiday calendar rather than the LME's. Where these prices fall on a US holiday, publication will move to the closest working day that precedes or follows that date and on a day that falls in the same calendar month.

For all other base metals prices, including all scrap and secondary alloy prices, and for Fastmarkets' alumina index, bauxite prices, nickel sulfate and ferro-nickel premiums, the LME holiday calendar will dictate the schedule. The LME calendar will also apply to the copper concentrates index, zinc and lead concentrate and blister copper prices. Where these prices fall on an English holiday, publication will move to the closest working day that precedes that date.

This notice does not include nickel pig iron, nickel ore and other minors, ores and alloys or steel prices, which have separate pricing calendars.*

Fastmarkets minor metals, ores & alloys and industrial minerals holiday pricing schedule 2021

Fastmarkets MB and Fastmarkets AMM minor metals, ores and alloys and Fastmarkets IM industrial minerals price assessments in 2021 will be rolled over from previous pricing days on pricing days that fall on public holidays in the country that the price relates to, or the location of the Fastmarkets MB, Fastmarkets AMM or Fastmarkets IM office in which the price is assessed (United Kingdom, United States and China).

This means that prices assessed in London, for instance, will be rolled over during England and Wales bank holidays.

Minors, ores and alloy and industrial minerals prices assessed in Shanghai, and all other Chinese price assessments, will follow Chinese public holidays and be rolled over during these bank holidays, and so on. Both spot lithium carbonate and lithium hydroxide prices at cif China, Japan and South Korea basis assessed by both London and Shanghai/Beijing will follow England and Wales bank holiday, and are not assessed or published during these bank holidays.

This notice does not include ferro-nickel. Ferro-nickel, as an LME-related discount/premium, follows the base metals calendar. Nickel sulfate also follows the base metals calendar.*

Fastmarkets ferrous holiday pricing schedule 2021

EMEA, CIS & Turkey

Fastmarkets MB ferrous prices in EMEA, CIS and Turkey will not be published during UK public holidays. Certain prices may also be affected by public holidays in other countries (see table below).

Daily prices

Daily ferrous prices will not be published during UK bank holidays, and will resume publication on the next working day. Daily prices will be published on all other days, including during public holidays that occur in the country/region where the price in question is based.

Weekly and monthly prices

Weekly and monthly ferrous prices will not be published on UK public holidays. Weekly and monthly prices will also not be published during public holidays that take place in the country where the price in question is based. Instead, they will be published on the next working day, except for prices usually published on a Friday which will be published on the preceding working day.

Exceptions

During certain weeks that contain multiple public holidays, certain prices will be rolled over on their scheduled publication day.

All UK and European weekly and monthly prices will be rolled over during the week containing Christmas Day and Boxing Day. Weekly and monthly prices based in other countries will be published during that week as normal (except on Christmas Day and Boxing Day, when they will be published on the next working day, except for prices usually published on a Friday which will be published on the preceding working day).

All Russian prices will be rolled over on the first Monday of the year because of the Russian New Year holiday.

All Turkey, Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) and Egypt prices will be rolled over during the weeks containing Eid al-Fitr and Eid al-Adha.

The timings of Eid al-Fitr and Eid al-Adha are defined by lunar observations and so are subject to change. As such, Fastmarkets may revise which prices will or will not be published. Any such changes will be announced via a pricing notice.
